Rams' Warner expects to return in 5 weeks

■ ST. LOUIS — The doctors say Kurt Warner won't be back under center for the St. Louis Rams for about two months, but the two-time MVP isn't paying any attention to their prognosis.

Warner figures it'll take just five weeks for the broken little finger on his throwing hand to heal.

"I believe that it's going to be sooner," the former Cedar Rapids Regis, Northern Iowa and Iowa Barnstormer quarterback said. "Last time I was out for just five weeks and came back. So I'm believing that it'll be at least that quick if not quicker. I'm going to stand on that.'

A Cougar defense that had been riddled for 1,518 yards and 148 points in its first four games disappeared into the soupy sky and the defense that appeared in its place came within 9 minutes of posting a shutout.

And reserve tailback Mike Russell popped out of a hat like a white rabbit to rush for 58 yards and Kennedy's lone touchdown in the third quarter, sending Waterloo West back on its heels.

Taken as a whole, the dash of magic produced a 10-6 Kennedy win over West, the Cougars' first of the 2002 Mississippi Valley Conference season.

Rolen left after he was clipped in the left side by pinch-runner Alex Cintron while scooping up a grounder in the seventh inning. X-rays were negative, and the preliminary diagnosis was a sprained shoulder. Further tests were scheduled for today in St. Louis.

"I do think that his continuing to play for sure in this series is very questionable," Manager Tony La Russa said. "We'll have our fingers crossed through tomorrow, but I think there's a chance he might have played his last game (this year).'

now." said Russell, a 5-foot-8, 145-pound junior who finished with 64 yards on 13 carries to pace a 144-yard Kennedy rushing attack.

"This is a new season for us. We're forgetting the past."

The Cougars improved to 1-4 and broke a five-game losing streak dating to the final week of last year's regular season. They finally scored for the first time in 14 quarters when Jake Settle hit a 24-yard field goal as time expired in the second quarter Thursday night.

The momentum created by those three points seemed to carry over into the second half.

"We had been shut out the last three games in a row. We hadn't been in the end zone no field goals or anything," Kennedy Coach Tim Lewis said. "The field goal was big because it gave us some confidence going into the locker room. We needed to make some adjustments coachingwise (in the second half) and once we did that, we started moving the ball."

The Cougars went 70 vards on nine plays on their second possession of the third quarter with Russell carrying six times for 52 yards in the drive. He covered the last 2 by going off right tackle for a touchdown with 1:47 left in the frame.

"We just started making plays and doing what we can do," Russell said. "It was our team out there playing like we know we can.'

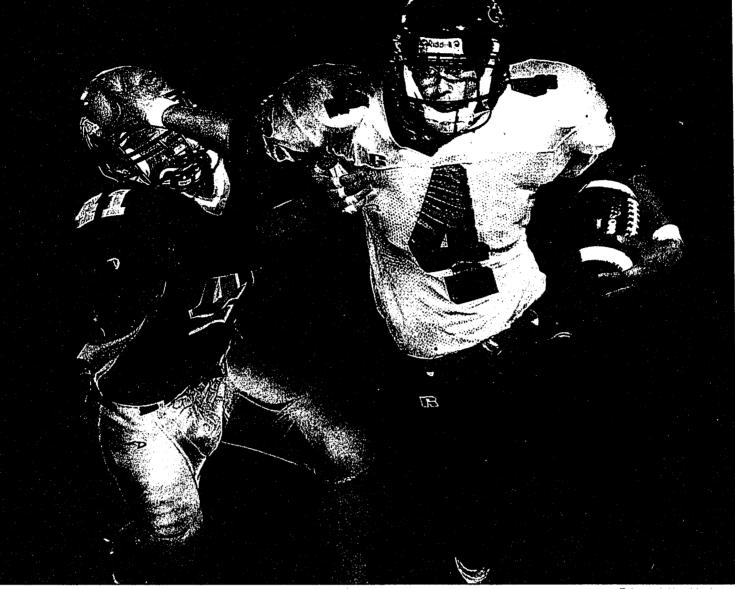

The Kennedy defense held the Wahawks (2-3) to 261 total yards-with-91 of those coming on a touchdown pass from Nate Lane to David Banks with 9:16 left in the game.

West got deep in Cougar territory twice in the first half, but kicker Danny Dunning had a 24-yard field goal attempt miss wide right in the first period and had a 42-vard attempt blocked in the second Still, he went into informal summer workouts thinking he might transfer, probably to Di-; vision III Wartburg in Waverly. He just wanted to play.

tackles, including four in the Alamo Bowl. This season, he's tied for third on the team with 31 tackles, tied for the team lead with two interceptions and blocked an extra point against Penn State.

So he can play. That's why he was so frustrated.

"I was just ready to leave," he said "I was as down as; anybody can be in their football career."

There was just something keeping him at Iowa.

"I think in the back of his mind was, 'If I don't try out for Division I, play at Iowa, I'll never know if I could make it or not," said Richard Pagel, Derek's father. His teammates don't know what they would do without "Through it all, he's kept a positive attitude," fellow fifth-year senior David Porter said. "He has really, really impressed me with his ability to bounce back. He's asserted himself as one of our leaders. We depend on him more than he depends on us."

Pagel is the Wizard of Vids for the secondary. A stop into the Iowa football complex will probably yield a glimpse of Pagel's face showered in the glow of a television.

"He's an excellent film watcher," said Sanders, Pagel's partner at safety. "He pretty much knows in and out what; they're going to come in and what they're going to do on us. Things you don't pick up as a strong safety, a guy like Pagel will be able to help you out."

Ferentz can't say enough' about what has become "The Derek Pagel Story."

"I think all of us in sports have doubts at some times about whatever you're doing," Ferentz said. "Fortunately for all of us, he stuck it out and the rest is history."

A crazy history.
"It's amazing," Pagel said.
"The highs are so high and the lows are so low ... I'm really running on a high right now.'

The Gazette Trent Goodale is back on the Iowa wrestling team.

ed up a volunteer assistant at Iowa City West High School. But he wasn't allowed to practice with the Hawkeye team. He's back, eligible and ready to challenge at 125 pounds.

"Being out of the room hurt him a little bit," Iowa Coach Jim Zalesky said. "But he's coming in hungrier than a freshman. We're happy to have him back in the room.'

Goodale is a sophomore, but can regain his lost season of eligibility if he graduates in four years.

He will battle Matt Morkel, Matt Shankey and Jesse Zobeck to determine who will challenge all-American Luke Eustice for the starting spot.

"It's good any time you have depth in your room," Zalesky said.

Eustice, an NCAA runner-up last March, is recovering from shoulder surgery in May, but is looking good, Zalesky said.

"He wrestled with a bad shoulder last year," Zalesky said. "People don't realize, but he practiced maybe 20 times all year . . . he's tough."

The Iowa wrestling team is practicing three times a week and will hold a Saturday morning session before the Iowa-Purdue football game. The wrestling room will be open to the public and practice will start at 8:30 a.m.

The team will hold wrestleoffs Nov. 8, the first day of its two-day coaches clinic. The opener is Nov. 15 at Minnesota.

Zalesky said there are few surprises in the lineup. He said red-shirt freshman Paul Bradley will battle veterans Trev Clark and Randy Fulsaas at 197, and freshman Mark Mueller will be in the mix at 165.

"I told (Mueller) I'm going? with the best wrestler at that; weight," Zalesky said.
